BRITISH CONSUL AT MATAGALPA SAYS LIVES OF BRITISH SUBJECTS ARE IN DANGER.

BLUE JACKETS ARRIVE

American Marines Will Establish Communications With Nicaraguan Capital—Present Situation.

Washington, Aug. 30.—The British consul at Matagalpa is fearful for the safety of the British subjects there and has communicated this fact to the British consul at Managua. The dispatch reads as follows: "The present local authorities are doing all in their power to guarantee life and property, but the circumstances are very difficult. Certain elements well known for their rancor and hostility and idiosyncrasies frequently have expressed evil intentions against foreigners at Matagalpa. I believe the lives and property of my British majesty's subjects would be in danger."

The consular agent accredited to Matagalpa, who is now at St. Paul, Minn., today informed the state department of the seriousness of the situation at his post. He says he has a dispatch stating that it was impossible for Americans there to reach Managua. He urged that troops be sent to Matagalpa without delay. The state department is informed that relief soon will reach that place.

It will be necessary for Admiral Sutherland to dispatch a relief expedition to Matagalpa. The government forces are so busily engaged with the rebels south of Managua that it may be impossible to send a sufficient federal force to occupy Matagalpa. The town is very difficult of access.

Establish Communications. San Juan del Sur, Aug. 30.—A force of five hundred American blue-jackets and marines left Corinto today to re-establish railroad and telegraph communication with Managua. ## SPEAKER WANTS THE DEMOCRATS TO RULE

Clark, in Speech at Bar Harbor, Says He is Anxious to See Democrats Win All Power in Government.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 30.—Clamp Clark, speaker of the house of representatives, delivered a speech here this afternoon in which he said he was anxious to see the democrats capture all three branches of the government so that "we can try our theory."

"Then if it works well the people will recognize the fact and reward us. If it proves bad in practice the people will throw us out as they should do. If, however, all three branches of the legislature are not of the same political faith neither party gets an opportunity to try its theory. We have recently witnessed that Washington spectacle of a democratic house passing good bills, bills which would have gone far towards relieving the people of the burden of heavy taxes—and of a republican president vetoing these bills as fast as they reached him. So I repeat that we want house, senate and president all three to be democratic." The rest of his speech was devoted to a defense of Governor Wilson.

WAGGONER TO STAND TRIAL FOR ROBBERY

Held Following Examination in Municipal Court This Morning—Several Witnesses Called and Questioned.

Hugh Waggoner, charged with robbing Robert Denner of six dollars and a gold watch on the night of Saturday, August 16, was bound over for trial in the municipal court at nine o'clock Wednesday morning, Sept. 4, as the result of an examination held this morning. In default of $1,000 bail he will await his trial in the county jail.

Frank Clark, bartender at the Sheridan hotel, was the first witness called and he was followed by James Boyce, a second bartender, and Frank Walters, porter at the hotel. Mr. Denner, the complainant was the last witness called, and the greater part of the hearing was devoted to his examination. District Attorney Stanley Dunneville appeared for the state, and Attorney Chas. Pierce for the defendant.

The testimony of Clark, Boyce and Walters, was concerned primarily with the circumstances under which the watch, which Mr. Denner identifies as his own, passed from Waggoner to Walters, and finally into the hands of the police. Mr. Clark in response to the questions of the attorneys, said that Mr. Walters told him on the morning of the twentieth that he needed a watch as he overslept.

When Waggoner came in later the day Clark told him that the porter wanted a watch, and Waggoner left one with him the next morning saying he would take $5 for it. Clark left at about twelve o'clock leaving word with Mr. Boyce, who took his place, that someone would call for the watch which was left on the back bar. When he returned at about 2:30 o'clock the watch was gone. He saw Waggoner in the bar room again at about six o'clock, and Waggoner then said to him that he wanted either the money or the watch. Boyce testified that the porter, Mr. Walters, came and got the watch. Mr. Walters said that before deciding to keep the time-piece he wanted to take it to a jeweler and get an estimate of its value, as Clark had not told him its price, but before doing so he had shot him. Mr. Walters who at once said that he was the watch they were looking for.

Mr. Denner repeated the story of the attack which was made upon him, but said he could not tell sure if Waggoner was the guilty party, as he was not able to see distinctly. He has about the same height and voice as his assailant. The watch recovered by Patrolman Brown was his. He identified it by the brass ring which he had taken from a basin plug and put in himself. There was also two ticks in the side which had been caused by its dropping on the floor. Attorney Charles Pierce closely questioned him concerning all his actions and movements during the afternoon and evening of the day he was robbed. He admitted he had been drinking some, but declared he was entirely able to care for himself and keep his feet.

WARNING IS ISSUED BY OIL INSPECTOR

Sixteen Deaths Caused in State by Explosions of Petroleum Products—Reviews Inspection Work.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Aug. 29.—In noting that sixteen persons lost their lives from fires and explosions caused by petroleum products in the past year, Louis E. Meyer, state supervisor of inspectors of illuminating oils, in his annual report today declared that "the fire that wasn't out has taken its place with the gun that wasn't loaded in the annals of destruction."

Mr. Meyer's statistics show also that 77 persons were injured and a property loss of $67,297.50 sustained. Investigation revealed that twelve of the sixteen deaths were caused by gross carelessness, the other four fatalities resulting from parents allowing children to handle kerosene and gasoline. Mr. Meyer says:

"Until the public can be made to realize that gasoline should never be used to start a fire and that kerosene should be used only when absolutely necessary, and then only when it is absolutely certain that no hot or even warm coals remain from a previous fire, the number of such accidents will increase. It is even more dangerous to pour kerosene upon hot coals than upon a blazing fire. While this is generally known, too frequently not enough care is taken to see that the old fire is out and the ashes cooled before kerosene is used. The result is that the fire that wasn't out has taken its place with the gun that wasn't loaded in the annals of destruction."

The work of the department is summarized by the following figures: Total number of deaths, 55; number of barrels of oil inspected, 392,636; total inspection fees, $77,066.26; total salaries paid deputies, $42,622.38; total expenses paid deputies, $1,478.04; total inspection fees collected by deputies, $77,066.26; total inspection fees turned into oil fund, $76,450.03; total inspection fees collected in past year but not turned into oil fund until present fiscal year, $615.83; total receipts of department, $76,450.63; disbursements, $51,459.08; balance turned into general fund, $24,991.55. It is predicted this amount will reach $20,000 at the end of the next fiscal year.

A number of successful prosecutions were made during the year, that against the Wadhams Oil company of Milwaukee resulting in a fine of $1,005 and costs for selling un-inspected gasoline during the pendency of a temporary injunction issued while the oil inspection law was being tested in the supreme court. The court upheld this law. A case against the Thomas B. Jeffery company of Kenosha, now pending, involves the constitutionality of that part of the law which requires that gasoline purchased and brought into Wisconsin for the use of the purchaser and not for resale be inspected. This case will probably go to the supreme court. In the meantime the defendant, while using inspected oil, refuses to pay inspection fees. The report states that violations of the oil inspection law are steadily increasing in number, and that there is general compliance with the Red Can law, with a consequence that there has been not a single serious accident from mistaking gasoline for kerosene. A school for inspectors was held in Madison on April 22, 1912, and the deputies were made to appreciate more strongly than before that their duty does not end with the inspection of kerosene and gasoline. New instructions governing the making of tests were issued and discussed, field instruments compared with the office standards, and all unsettled questions cleared up.

The report commends Chief Deputy Dexter Witte for his assistance in improving departmental efficiency.

These Are the Days When the Man Who Forgot is Forgotten

By J. R. HAMILTON. Former Advertising Manager Wauwamaker's, Philadelphia.

EVEN the man who forgot to set the semaphore and killed a hundred people is seldom remembered by name. He simply passes out of the lives and the activities of man.

It behooves us all to remember. And Memory? Memory is the shortevolved of all the faculties.

In some scientific texts made a few years ago, it was found that memory reaches its clearest vision about twenty minutes after any occurrence. From then on the picture dims. And what we hold so vividly in our minds years after an occurrence is not the memory but the imagination of it.

Now hundreds of people are trying to impress some big idea upon our fleeting memories every day. They are trying to tell us about their store, or their merchandise, or their advantages of some kind or other. They are trying to impress upon us the advantages of their time-savers or their money-savers. They are trying to tell us of some luxury we ought to have. They are trying to give us some luxury we ought to have. They are trying to give us a mental picture of some necessity.

They are spending a great deal of money in doing this. And it seems only fair when they go to all this effort for our benefit that we should at least give them some small part of our active attention.

The reason these people advertise again and again and again is because we will not compel our eyes to see what they have to say nor our minds to remember it. And so they are obliged to compel our memories for us. And so they do it in spite of us, because they have also learned that constant repetition is the greatest method of training the memory and instilling an important fact into our minds.

But the point is that advertising is far more important even for us who buy than for those who sell. For advertising has come to signify an act and an emblem of good faith throughout all the channels of trade.

And so those of us who have not learned to read the advertising and to remember its message are constantly being tricked in price and fooled in quality.

We are the ones who lose out in the fight. We are the man at the semaphore. We who forget, are forgotten.

Tomorrow night there will be an announcement of unusual interest to YOU in this space. Watch for it!

McBride, formerly of this city, and Mr. Discol of Milwaukee, aged 81 years. The work was put on by the Madison degree team which is considered one of the best, if not the best in the state.

The Ladies' Auxiliary furnished a luncheon in the spacious dining room below the hall. On Wednesday the reports of different committees were handed in. The committee on membership showed a large gain not only in this state but all over the United States, showing a membership of two hundred thousand. Prof. M. S. Rohan, national chairman of Irish history, showed the immense gain of parochial schools where Irish history is taught. The election of officers took place in the afternoon which resulted in the election of Joseph P. Callon of Milwaukee, state president, Matthew F. Carpenter, vice president, J. P. Heffernan of Janesville, state secretary, R. Burke of Kenosha, state treasurer and Rev. Dean Reilly, state chaplain.

Thirty automobiles were in waiting around the city, stopping at Revena Park where an elaborate banquet was awaiting them. The Irish jig and reel dance by Prof. McNamara's class was well enjoyed by all. The local division is so elated over the great success of the national and state convention they are going to initiate a large class here in October.

Gave Life to Save Dog.

A few months ago a woman who had been given charge of a level crossing at Mohun, in the Cher department, near Paris, France, on her husband's death, and who lived alone in a little house beside the line—was rescued by a stray dog from a tramp who tried to murder her. She took the dog to live with her. One recent evening the woman saw that her dog, which was quite used to trains, was sleeping on the line. She noticed him just as an express train came thundering along, ran to the line, and rescued him, but was herself knocked down by the train and killed.

The Power of the Press.

A newspaper can drop the same thought into a thousand minds at the same moment. A newspaper is an adviser who does not require to be sought, but comes to you briefly every day of common weal, without distracting your private affairs. Newspapers, therefore, become more necessary in proportion as men become more equal individuals, and more to be feared. To suppose that they only serve to protect freedom would be to diminish their importance; they maintain civilization.—De Tocqueville.

Sport Snap Shots

By Dan McCarty

A Funny tale has just drifted in from the Pacific coast. Old George Van Halren, a star of the early days, fell back to the coast league as age came upon him. Before entering baseball he was a leather by trade.

until he learned that at 7 a. m. daily Van was packing his hatchet off to new houses and raking in a few extra dollars by slapping on the lath.

Dave Smith, the middleweight and heavyweight champion of Australia, who recently came to this country for the purpose of getting some Yankee scalps for his belt, is scheduled to make his debut soon at a New York club. He was matched with Eddie McGorty, but the latter called off the bout. Smith is reputed to be a regular ring assassin.

The "come-back" list in major league baseball is getting to be a pretty long one. For instance, there's McMillen, twice up and down, who is shining again with the New York Yankees. Might be mentioned also Jean Dubuc, of the Detroit Tigers, who was with the Cincinnati Reds once, and then fell out of the big league company. Dubuc has covered himself over with considerable glory this season, and is known as one of the best pitchers in the American league.

This Speaker, of the Boston Red Sox, who is shining this year almost as brightly as Cobb, was up once, then sent back to Little Rock. Tom Hughes is with fast company again. Many others might be mentioned.

There is food for thought in America's uninterrupted succession of triumphs at the Olympic games," recently declared A. G. Spalding, one of the oldest living baseball players. "Why do our athletes always win? I believe the whole secret of these continued successes is to be found in the kind of training that comes with the playing of America's national game."

"Youngsters not yet big enough to attend school begin quickening their eyesight and sharpening their wits and strengthening their hands and arms and legs by playing on baseball fields ready at hand in the meadows of farms, the commons of villages, and the parks of cities all over the land. Baseball combines running, jumping, throwing, and everything that constitutes the athletic events of the Olympic games."

James Thorpe, the Carlisle Indian wonder, winner of the all-round championship at the Olympic games in Stockholm, is captain of this year's Carlisle school football team. He is a pitcher and outfielder on the institution's baseball nine. Although several of the major leagues have tried to sign him, he will continue at school for another year.

money, while Amo K made a poor showing, taking sixth and last place. In the 2:17 pace Wednesday, The Rex, owned by E. Ray Lloyd of Janesville, took third money with three thirds and one first. The track was slow which accounted for the poor showing made by The Rex.

PARKERS ARE SURE OF FIRST POSITION

Y. M. C. A. Has a Possible Chance to Win League Honors—Machine Company Fighting for Third Place.

Games scheduled in the Commercial League tomorrow and Monday will be the deciding contests of the season. While the Parker Pen team which passed the association team in the race a week ago has a strong hold on the first position in the percentage column, there is a remote possibility that the Y. M. C. A. nine may take them in the race.

At Athletic park tomorrow afternoon the Y. M. C. A. will meet the Machine company and the Hanson team will meet the Gazette. It is understood that the Recorder will forfeit to the Parkers and that the Lewis and Northwestern teams will not play. Thus the association nine will have to win from the Machine company, a tough proposition, in order to keep the margin of difference between them and the leaders the same as at present. If the team wins it is probable that they will insist on playing the postponed game with the Parkers as scheduled for Labor day. Should the "Y" team be successful Labor day and Saturday, both, they would be tied with the pen-makers and another game would be necessary to decide the honors.

The fight for third place in the league is much keener than the rivalry over first. The Hanson and Machine company teams will play to the last inning in order to secure the honor and for this reason the "Y" will have a hard time tomorrow to defeat the aspiring machinists. Should both the Hanson and Machine company teams win tomorrow it is probable that the game between them scheduled for Labor day will be played in order to decide the contest. The only other game scheduled for Labor day is between the Gazette and Machine company.

BUTTERS IS SIGNED WITH MADISON TEAM

Local Slab Artist Will Appear on Mound Either Tomorrow or Sunday for State Capital Team.

Pitcher Thomas Butters of Janesville, who has the record of winning every game he has pitched this season for the Stoughton nine, semi-professionals, has been signed with the Madison team of the Wisconsin-Illinois league. Secretary Parsons closed the contract with Butters on Wednesday and stated he was confident he had secured a good prospect for next year's pitching staff in Butters. Butters started his baseball career in this city and did his best work here with the Parker Pen team. The manager of the Madison team expects to put Butters on the mound either tomorrow or Sunday in the series with Racine.

Special Meeting Called For Friday Evening To Close Up Business Of League For Season.

Secretary J. C. Kline of the Commercial League has called a special meeting of the managers of the league to be held at the Y. M. C. A. building at 7:30 o'clock this evening to close up the business matters of the league for the season. The season's schedule closes with the games Saturday, although there are several postponed games that may be played at later dates. A report of the treasurer on the financial condition of the league will be given tonight, and an account given of all receipts and disbursements. A letter of thanks from Mr. and Mrs. William J. ## HENRY WOULD LIKE TO BE SPEAKER

Representative Robert L. Henry, of Texas, would like to succeed Champ Clark as speaker of the next house of representatives, and is already laying his wires. During the recess between now and December he will attempt to build up a strong organization. Mr. Henry is one of Prof. Wilson's strongest adherents in the house and expects much help from the Democratic candidate for the presidency.

Discontent. We are never more discontented with others than we are discontented with ourselves. The consciousness of wrongdoing makes us irritable, and our heart, in its cunning, quarrels with what is outside it, in order that it may deafen the clamor within.—H. F. Amiel.

Voters Who Failed to Register Aug. 6 Will Have Second Chance—Last Registration Normal. Voters who failed to register at the last registration day will have a second opportunity to do so next Tuesday, primary election day, and will also have the right to vote in the primaries, according to Councilman R. M. Cummings and City Clerk P. J. Hammarlund. The registration on Aug. 6 was normal, an average of between four and five hundred votes being registered in each ward. In accordance with the usual custom, the old lists were copied, although it was believed for a time that a recent statute, prohibited that practice. It is now understood that this provision of the law does not take effect until next year. Another registration will be held a week before the general election in November.

Directors Children's Museum. Miss Sarah L. Arnold, dean of Simmons college, Boston, and Miss Mary C. Melly, supervisor of substitutes of the public schools of Boston, have been elected members of the board of directors for the new Children's Museum of Boston. This museum will be built and conducted along the lines of the children's museum in Brooklyn. The latter institution has an annual income of $12,000 from the appropriation made by the city to the Brooklyn Institute museum. Departments relating to botany, art, geography, geology, zoology, history, and physics will be arranged for the special benefit of children in the Boston museum. They will make a specialty of the work of wireless telegraphy.

Patents. Application for a patent must be made in writing to the commissioner of patents at Washington. The applicant must also file in the patent office a written description of the invention or discovery and of the manner and process of making it, in such full, clear, concise and exact terms as to enable those skilled in the arts and sciences to which it appertains, or with which it is most nearly concerned, to construct and use the same. When the nature of the case admits of drawings, the applicant must furnish them of the required size. In all cases which admit of representation by model the applicant, if required by the patent office, must furnish a model for exhibition.

How to Succeed. If you want to succeed in this world you must make your own opportunities as you go on. ## Theater

"THE KISSING PRINCESS." The Reliable Play Producers, Inc., whose reputation for producing only the best musical comedies will present at the Myers theatre, Monday, Sept. 2, matinee and night, their biggest success, "The Kissing Princess."

MISS ORLO EARTON (The Princess) in the musical comedy success direct from the Court theatre, Chicago, "The Kissing Princess," to be at the Myers theatre Labor Day, matinee and night, Sept. 2. Those of us that were fortunate in seeing their last season's musical comedy, "A Married Bachelor," will remember one of the best shows that ever visited our city.

NOT MUCH ROOM FOR DOUBT. Some people have wondered, why certain plays they did not admire were successful. If one stops to consider, they could reason the matter out to their own satisfaction. Because a play or book does not appeal to you or me, should not signify that it is devoid of merit. But the piece that appeals to the most people is indeed the best, it matters not what you may say, or what the critics may say, the people are the best judges and as the majority is considered right, in this land, we must accept the will of the majority in this, as well as in other cases. "My Friend from Arkansas," which is, to me seen at the Myers theatre, Sunday, September 1, matinee and night, is said to be a play that contains the qualities that catches the interest of the public and holds it through the entire evening. It contains not only wholesome heart interest, but is bubbling over with quaint humor; that is sure to catch the attention of the humorously inclined. The people engaged to interpret this excellent play are said to be selected from among the best in the country, so they will be entitled to the excellent patronage the local manager is anticipating for them.

EXPOSES JOKERS.

That the income tax law is full of jokers, pitfalls for the unwary to tumble into, which the average citizen does not see at first glance and which certainly are skillfully covered up by the tax commission, is certain. Excerpts from an address of an opponent to the law delivered at Sheboygan recently may not be amiss just at this time.

"During the last weeks we have read in the newspapers varying estimates, ranging from $30,000 to $85,000 as to the probable cost of administering the income tax law. It is significant that all of these figures are mere estimates and have emanated from the very officials who are assured positions and salaries by that law itself.

"By one provision of the law (section 1087m-9) the salaries of the assessors of incomes and their deputies and assistants are limited not to exceed in any year in amount 5 cents for every $1,000 of the valuation of all property as fixed in the state assessment. The total assessment for the year 1910 (which governs that part of the cost of administration for 1911) was $1,680,210,140, and the amount of the limit of cost of administration in the respect stated would be over $84,000 for 1911. For 1912 the same item will be over $147,000, because the total assessment for 1912 has grown to $2,341,412,342.

"Here we see joker No. 1 of the law. The people are being blinded temporarily with the 1911 figure, $84,000, but if the law is allowed to stand they probably will never be told why the next year has cost up to $147,000 for that one item of expense alone, namely, salaries and expenses of assessors and their underlings.

"But we have joker No. 2 in the law in the form of a subsequent provision (sec. 1087m 14), providing that the state tax commission shall appoint three resident taxpayers of each county to serve as a county board of review and limiting their compensation at $10 per day each. Another attempt to blind the people is made by making a tentative division of the state into thirty-nine assessment districts, but, mark you, that we have seventy-one counties in the state and that the number of members of the boards of review does not depend upon the districts, but upon the counties. The law provides that the board of review is to meet on the last Monday of July, which was the twenty-ninth in this year. In Milwaukee county that board is still in session and it has not been made known when it will adjourn. Thus far the expense of that board at $30 per day can easily be figured. Assuming that in other counties they will spend one-half of the time that has been spent here, it becomes apparent that the expense of the board of review will be very considerable, and with the well known tendency of public officials to spend, rather than save, per diems, where the law does not require them to complete their work within a fixed time, the total expense for that item alone will run anywhere from $20,000 to $30,000, at a conservative figure."

Certain candidates for the assembly are most urgent in their statements that the new law will not affect the farmers or the working man. If this be true then how can they account for the following facts gathered by T. C. Richmond of Madison.

"Taking, as correct, the statements of the tax experts whose carefully prepared tables and newspaper articles are now under consideration, it appears that there are in Dane county about 8,611 farmers, that an income tax has been assessed against 208 of them, and of that 208, all but 68 paid in 1911 a larger personal property tax than the income tax assessed against them. In other words, we call upon over 8,000 farmers and compel them under a penalty of $500 fine, or one year imprisonment, or both, together with the costs of prosecution (no nonsense about that law) to disclose all their business secrets, to produce their books, if demanded, to make itemized accounts of receipts and disbursements, in order to pick out 68 men who are supposed to be liable to this special tax. No such inquisitorial proceeding has ever before been thought of, much less practiced or countenanced by the people of Wisconsin. It is the acme of impudence; impudence gone mad. The income tax fishing expedition is on and on an average, so far as the farmers are concerned, at least according to the expert's report, of every 115 fish landed, 114 are thrown back into the water as worthless for the purpose in view. But they have felt the hook if even their scales have not been scraped off, and they have been fortunate enough to escape evisceration. So much for what is said about the farmers. How about the so-called 'laborers'? The county is sifted and eight are assessed and seven have to pay an income tax, the total amount of their tax being $13.71. How is that for a tax?"

"All the laborers of the county are supposed to be compelled to hold up their hands and swear, etc., etc., with the result that we collect the munificent sum of $13.71! Who believes for a moment that there are only eight 'laborers' in Dane county that come under the provisions of the law? How do our income tax friends define the word 'laborers'?"

"But of course the tax on real estate will be less. Not at all. We must not look for that. The same high authority informs us.

"It is not likely the average tax rate throughout the state will increase or diminish materially."

"Let us see where we are drifting. It is generally understood that the assessors throughout the state have been instructed to raise the valuation of real estate. It must be assessed at its actual value, that is, the price for which it will sell. It is clear to all that the result will be a great increase in the assessed valuation of real estate. The rate of taxation is to remain practically the same for we are told it will not increase or diminish materially; (let us be thankful for the promise that it will not increase). Then we are to raise just about as much money as usual from the personal property tax. In addition to this, we are to realize between two and three millions from the income tax. Can anyone tell what the total amount of our taxes will be? If there is an official mathematician let him get to work.

"We are told that the law will benefit the farmer, and yet the farmer is taxed on the full value of his farm and in addition, must pay an income tax on what the farm produces, less of course, the exemptions. We are told that this law will reach the wealthy, and yet the man who has a thousand dollar mortgage will have to pay a tax of only fifty cents. We are told that it will encourage industry, and yet the farmer who remains on and works his farm is taxed on the full value of his farm, plus the income tax on the proceeds thereof, while the farmer who sells his farm and refuses to do any more work, and puts his money out at interest, pays after he gets, say $12,000 for his farm, an income tax of 50 cents on the first thousand dollars, 62½ cents on the second thousand dollars and so on up until he pays an income tax of $2.75 on the twelfth thousand dollars, or a total of $16.75; whereas, if he were taxed at the average rate of 1½ per cent. on the full value of $12,000, his taxes would be $180. Thus it is seen that a premium is put upon idleness, and industry is penalized.

"Whatever may be said in favor of a national income tax law, there is absolutely no justification whatever for, nor can there be any defense of such a statute as the Wisconsin income tax law. The fact is, we are now, and were, prior to the enactment of this law, paying taxes on practically everything in sight, from cradle to coffin, from swaddling clothes to shroud. Unfortunately we have among us a class of political reformers who are constantly looking for something to tax and if this practice keeps on, we may, with pardonable exaggeration, say it will not be long before one-half of the people will be paying taxes to support the other half."

Down in Beloit it is said there is a strife between the Rosa republicans and the Cunningham republicans because the latter have organized the liquor vote which Rosa does not approve of. May the war be a merry one.

Tuesday is primary day and the voters of the county will have the pleasure of exerting the right of franchise granted them under the constitution of casting their ballots for the candidates of their choice.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

By ROY K. MOULTON.

From Our London Correspondent.

I have been able, while here in London, to accumulate some very valuable gossamer. I have in my possession now the very ax with which Charles I. got it in the neck. I paid only 21 for it and consider I got a good deal the best of the bargain, for the ax weighs about nine. I know that it is the genuine thing, for I have seen three others just like it which have been bought by Americans at the same shop where I got mine.

I have also purchased a small piece of the tail of the celebrated cloak which Sir Walter Raleigh spread over the mudpuddle to allow Queen Elizabeth to cross. I also have the first pipe smoked by Sir Walter when he introduced tobacco into England. I have discovered a small trademark of a pipe concern in the end of the bit of the pipe, but I suppose that is only a coincidence.

The Carlton Hotel, where I am stopping is strictly up to date and has roller towels in all of the washrooms. Mr. Carlton is a very pleasant gentleman and stands out in front of his hotel with a brilliant uniform on to take your baggage and help you into the hotel. I haven't met Mrs. Carlton yet, but her cooking, as I have mentioned before, in the case of Mrs. St. Regis, of New York, is excellent.

Every regular boarder gets a clean napkin once a week, rain or shine, and they have a railroad map and both telephones in the office.

The Militant Suffragents.

H. F. E. writes in as follows: "When my wife learned that I had joined the Militant Suffragents she was furious and I have been cooking my own meals for three days. She has gone home to visit her mother. I don't know how long I am going to be able to remain loyal to the cause and I ask for moral support and prayers of all the brothers.

That second choice next Tuesday is going to bother a lot of voters, so why not cut it out entirely and cast your vote in the old fashioned way for one candidate and let it go.

Beloit's fair has proven a most successful one thus far and next week Evansville will entertain the visitors with its annual exhibit, races and ball games.

As September draws near and vacation days draw to a close the small boy is wondering if life is worth living after all.

Janesville had one circus, one carnival and numerous imitations this year even if the big white tops did not visit it.

Heart to Heart Talks.

By EDWIN A. ABBEY.

"He did his best."

There could scarcely be a better epitaph than that to write over the tomb of the late Edwin A. Abbey, American artist.

Nothing less than his best was good enough for Mr. Abbey. When he was a struggling illustrator for Harper's, a quarter of a century ago, it was said of him that he could have made twice his wages had he been content to do less than the best that was in him.

He lived up to his ideals. Abbey's favorite work was his illustrated Shakespeare. In these paintings he worked from models exclusively. Further, in his desire for absolute accuracy he bought the costumes and furniture of the Shakespearean period and posed his models under the best possible surroundings.

Always it was his fixed determination to do his best. Abbey painted many pictures only to destroy them. They seemed to be good. He easily might have sold them. But they did not satisfy his artistic sense.

Love's labor lost, you say. Abbey did not think so. He felt that a picture which fell below the standard set up by his maker did not deserve to live.

Abbey succeeded. He did not become a great painter like Michelangelo or Da Vinci or Millet, but his work will live, and his death at sixty was a distinct loss to the world of art.

Hard work and high ideals could not make him a Raphael, but it made him an Abbey—a successful, admired and happy man.

And you? Hard work may not make you great, but it will make you successful and comfortable and, if along right lines, influential.

The example of Edwin A. Abbey is of more encouragement to the struggling youth than is that of the greater genius. It shows what moderate ability, coupled with conscientious endeavor, may accomplish. Do your best. When you look up at Athel's mural work at the Boston Public Library, or see his great picture at Harrisburg, or look upon a copy of his paintings, let it remind you that—He did his best.

But the lookin', scorchin' devils, Painted red or green or plink; They ain't got no right a-givin' Us folks heart disease, I think. When we die we will escape 'em, Thank the goodness, I've been told There will be nothin' autos Scorchin' down the streets of gold.

The Right Principle:

Every big store nowadays must, in order to treat every one alike, stick to the rules they adopt and to make exceptions of a few would be to break a principle, that may eventually lead to the ruin of a business. "Be sure you are right then go ahead" is what some knowing philosopher once said and it's by far the best advice that anyone can give you. The Big Store is right in about everything they do—they give the right quality at the right price—they give you the right sort of service, and anything unsatisfactory is always made right.

The world is quick to forgive the man who does not ask to be excused. God can forgive us on no other terms; and God's forgiveness is the only way to assured victory over failure.—The Sunday School Times.

THE whole doctrine of Devoe Lead and Zinc Paint turns on these three points:

1. It is all paint and true paint.
2. It is strongest, and goes farthest paint.
3. It is full measure.

Because these three things are true, Devoe Lead and Zinc Paint takes least gallons for the job; looks best all the time; last longer.

There is no such argument for any other paint; there is no other such paint; the man who uses Devoe gets the best he can get, in paint.

TEXT—1 Cor. 15:14-19, 29-32—"And if Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain. Yea, and we are found false witnesses of God; because we have testified of God that he raised up Christ; whom he raised not up. For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised: And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins."

In the last address on this subject we saw that the denial of Christ's resurrection made our preaching vain, our faith vain, and left us still in our sins. We now proceed to set forth some further results of such denial.

IV. If Christ be not risen from the dead then we are found false witnesses.

The word "found" means to be detected or discovered in the perpetration of a fraud. It is a word used for judgments regarding moral character and conduct, and conveys the idea of discovering and detecting forgery and falsity.

In using this word, the apostle would say that in proclaiming to the Corinthians the doctrine of the resurrection of Christ, he and the other apostles had been guilty of perpetrating fraud upon them.

If Christ be not risen, then the apostles are false witnesses; the apostles are deluded, mistaken, deceived, the victims of an hallucination, which was the result of an over-wrought brain and imagination, but false witnesses. Deluded! say the apostle, we cannot be; victims of an over-wrought imagination, innocent but deceived, and thus—all this is impossible, we are down-right deceivers; we have willingly, knowingly perpetrated a fraud upon the church in claiming that Christ rose from the dead; we are down-right deceivers. The strange thing about the apostle's statement is that the idea of delusion or hallucination is wholly absent from his argument. It does not seem to have occurred to him to mention it. Even the possibility of it is too remote to be spoken of.

To the apostle, the resurrection of Christ is a truth or a falsehood, a reality of a fraud, a thing of sincerity or of deceit, a fact or a mistake. There is no loophole of escape—the resurrection is either a fact or a falsehood, a reality or a sham, and such persons as the apostles were guilty of perpetrating it.

Paul feels that the stigma of falsehood has been put upon him. He feels that he has been stung by an insult. Somebody has not believed him—has made him out to be a liar. His testimony in effect is this: I have seen the risen Christ; I have talked with him; I have received my commission from him. To challenge my statement is to challenge my character, my veracity, my understanding, my reason.

V. If Christ be not risen from the dead then we have no God who is worthy of our trust.

To attribute to a person a good or glorious act, which it is well known that he never performed, is to cause that person to be suspected of having prompted the false assertion. So the testimony of the apostle would lead men to think that God had inspired men to tell lies about him.

Many think that they can still have faith in God, that they still have left a God whom they can trust and in whom they can repose their faith, even though they do not accept the resurrection of Jesus Christ. The apostle says plainly, This is not so; if we have no risen Christ, neither have we a God in whom we can trust. Note the serious point here. "Paul preached God, he commended God, and the justice of God as shown in raising his holy son from the dead. But if Jesus Christ is not risen from the dead, then we have no such God. If one like Jesus Christ is still left dead, if one be so good as Jesus was and still be deprived of life, what kind of a God have we? We have no God in whom we can trust; it is no use trying to be good. The end is a skull and a few ashes. 'We have testified of God,' says Paul, 'we have justified God, but we are found false witnesses of him if Jesus Christ did not rise from the dead. Have you considered what that point means? The modern man often assumes that he is already in possession of a God with a reliable character, whatever you make of Jesus Christ. But there is something in the career and in the issue of the career of Jesus Christ that makes a good God in this tragic world incredible unless Christ be risen from the dead. Jesus went through the worst sufferings that any man ever suffered. He sounded the depths of the world's tragedy. Now if he has been raised from the dead we may believe in God; but if there be no resurrection of the spotless Christ, then God is either dead or mad. We have no reasonable God left."

What Dress is to Woman.

Fashion is woman's literature. Dress is the expression of her personal style. By dress she conveys the outward expression of her taste, of her skill, and even of her aesthetic individuality. It is thus that she contrives to charm the eyes of the arts, the art containing all the others. It is not the expression of her characteristic style, as we have said, but it is her palette, her poem, her theatrical setting, her song of triumph.

CONSTIPATION IS A MENACE IN SUMMER

Regularity of Bowels Very Important to Health at This Time

At no time should people more closely watch the condition of their bowels than during hot weather. Summer conditions contribute in various ways to cause constipation, but whatever the cause the trouble should be quickly corrected; constipation, if neglected, leads directly to serious and often fatal disease.

Some people find that certain fruits have laxative effect, but this cannot be depended upon; a mild laxative tonic that will act gently and positively, without griping or shock to the system, is far preferable. The compound of simple laxative herbs with Pepsin, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is highly recommended as being easy and natural in action, pleasant to the taste, and certain in its effect. A dose of Syrup Pepsin at night will restore normal action in the morning, carrying off the heaviness and bloating. Salts, purgative waters and cathartics should be avoided as they upset the entire system and afford at best but temporary relief. By cleansing the bowels and removing the foreign matter that irritates and in names the tissues, a spoonful of Syrup Pepsin will quickly check the summer diarrhoea that is so vexing.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists for fifty cents a bottle. The larger, family size costing one dollar. A free trial bottle can be obtained, accompanied by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 406 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

ANSWER IS MADE TO A COMPLAINT FILED

Mr. Richardson Asks Correction For Statement Credited to Him
—Correction is Made and Suggestions Answered.

In the following article will be found a letter received from M. P. Richardson in which he asks correction for statements credited to him which he says he did not make. The answer is given below the letter which is published in full and Mr. Richardson is asked a few questions himself which may explain his attitude as to the republican party. The letter and answer is as follows:

Dear Sir:
In an editorial in the Gazette of yesterday you state "The Milwaukee Journal continues to heap abuse on all who differ with them, mistate facts etc."

As I presume the Gazette does not wish to be put in the same category, I trust you will grant me space in your paper to correct some misstatements in an accompanying editorial relating to myself.

Referring to the income tax, you say, "He stands for the law in its entirety." If you had taken the trouble to read the article in Saturday's Gazette stating my position, you would have found that I used the following words: "I think the present income tax should be altered in some important features, corporations probably ought to be taxed by the same method as individuals."

Further on in the same editorial you say, "Mr. Richardson says that but twenty-five farmers in the county will have to pay the increased tax." I said nothing of the kind, perhaps Mr. Rosa did.

But if the Gazette is desirous of knowing by whom the income tax is paid and wants its readers to know the facts, would it not be a good plan to publish in the Gazette the figures given in the Wisconsin State Journal, as to who pays the income tax in Dane County? In an editorial in last week's Gazette the editor seemed worried over the effect of the income tax upon the farmers and working men.

Permit me to call attention to the fact that it appears from the statistics of the Dane County assessor that the total tax paid by the farmers of that county is $142,250 from which must be deducted the personal property tax of 1911 amounting to $265,000 leaving a net cost to the farmers of that county by reason of the income tax of $877.35. Also that the laborers of that county will pay an income tax of $13.71 and all mechanics and tradesmen together, after deducting their personal property tax will pay an income tax of $992.90. Also that all the farmers, mechanics, tradesmen and laborers combined pay only 2 per cent of the tax.

As the Gazette has been for many moons very much worried over the alleged injury to manufacturers from the income tax and considerably incensed over the interference in state affairs by the Professors in the University, it no doubt gave you great pleasure to see that the manufacturers themselves personally in Dane County will not have to pay as large an income tax as the Professors and others in academic pursuits, the former paying less than $4000 and the latter a trifle over $5000. There is a great deal more interesting information to be gathered from the Dane County statistics. Would not the voters of Rock County like to know how it actually works and who really pays the tax? If you can't get the figures from Rock County, why not publish those from Dane County.

Yours truly,
M. P. RICHARDSON.

N. B. By the Editor:
There was no intention to misquote Mr. Richardson or misrepresent him to the voters. While the quotation from his campaign advertisement does contain the statement referred to, "It requires a statesman-like view and practical knowledge of the whole of taxation in order to form a correct conception of the place of the income tax in our state government machinery" according to an earlier quotation in the same advertisement and this one clause, insignificantly placed the middle of a long dissertation on the platitudes of the law, was lost sight of. What Mr. Richardson may have said in his advertisement is not exactly in accord with what he has said in arguing in defense of the law. The reference to twenty-five farmers was perhaps incorrect as he said twenty-nine, a difference of four, being all who would pay taxes under the law is taken from a statement, second hand it is true, that the candidate made to men whom he would impress with his capability to become their choice. Where he got authority for this he does not state.

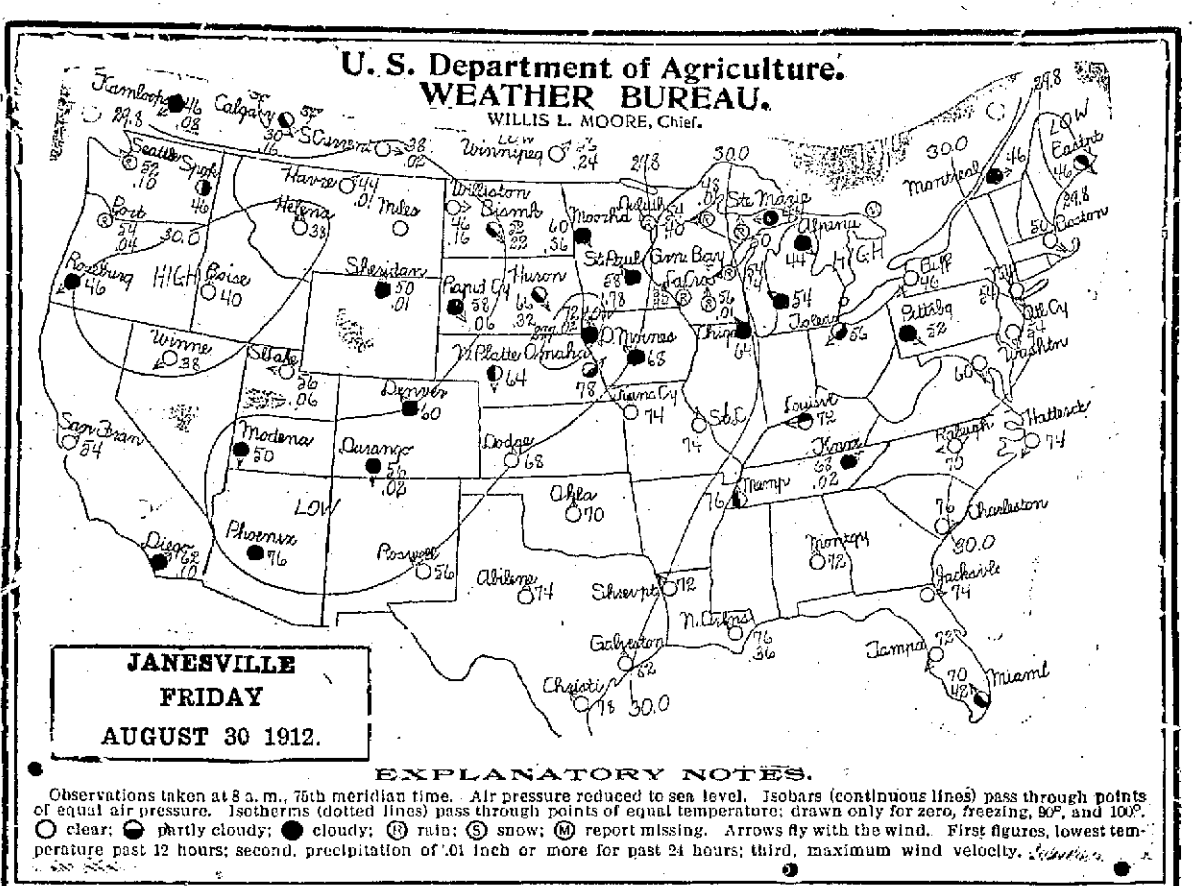

Had Mr. Richardson read the news columns of the Gazette as avowedly as he has the editorial, he would have found the report of the state tax commission as regards to Dane county, published in a summary giving some of the figures showing the increase in taxes to be paid.

The Gazette denies the charge that it has been worried over the alleged injury to manufacturers from the income tax or that it obtained great pleasure from learning the University professors were to pay increased taxes. The injury to the state has already been sufficiently great, through the workings of this and other laws, not to cause worry, but sorrow on the part of all citizens who have its best interests at heart.

The increased taxation of the college professors is not material to the question that the University, in its present form of management is a pernicious influence on the state as a whole, which statement Mr. Richardson carelessly ignores. His campaign argument or corrections.

The Gazette believes the income tax is one of the many iniquitous laws on the statutes of the state and it urges the voters of Rock County to nominate only men for legislative office who can be relied upon to best represent the interests of the district and not follow the so-called "statesmanlike views" of the ultra progressive who seem bound to wreck and ruin the business interests of the state.

The juggling of the facts at issue by the tax commission as regards the Fair weather continues this morning over the eastern and southern portions of the United States, except along the Gulf coast, where showers have occurred. Rains have also occurred in the last twenty-four hours over the northern portion of the United States and over western Canada, from the Lake region west to the Pacific. The heaviest rains reported are 1.60 inches at Pierre, and 1.75 inches at St. Paul.

Cool weather is reported over the Plateau states and Canada, freezing temperatures being recorded at Yellowstone Park and at Calgary. Dane county taxation list, while making a severe penalty for figures from any other county to be made public, shows most conclusively that the law is in serious need of defenders. What is true of Dane county would not be true of Rock county and vice versa. Dane county was selected as an example after careful consideration of the figures and the public does not know whether the whole truth or but part of the truth has been told in this case. It is an excellent example to befuddle the voters but it lacks the Rock county figures to bring it directly home to the people.

One question might be asked. Mr. Richardson that is most pertinent to the present issue, is he a republican who will support the republican nominees Taft and Sherman, or will he vote as he is intimidated after the democratic convention, for Wilson and Marshall?

Building at Riverside District, Town of Rock, Condemned by Inspector, Will Be Replaced.

At a special meeting of the electors of the Riverside school district, Junction No. 1, towns of Rock and La Prairie, held Wednesday night, it was decided to build a new school building to replace the present structure which was recently condemned by State Rural School Inspector H. L. Terry. The members of the board and Supt. Antisdel are also taking steps to apply for a loan from the state to aid in building. Plans will be drawn at once and work will be rushed to complete the schoolhouse as soon as possible. School sessions will be held in the old building while the new one is being erected.

Edmund Burke's Fame Secure.

Among the great men of the world few have been the subject of higher panegyric than Edmund Burke, and, on the whole, few have better deserved praise. No public man was ever more pure in his politics and more pure in his life, and few have been as noble minded. He possessed indefatigable industry. There was no subject that he could not master, and none which, having mastered, he could not expound with unparalleled richness of language.—Exchange.

Value of Confidence.

The proverb has it that a man's character is no better than his creed; the dwarf is without a creed and longs for none. It is the pushing man who boasts of a creed and convictions along with it. The man who has full confidence in himself seldom comes out at the short end of the horn in the battle of life.

LEWIS E. GETTLE,

Republican Candidate for the Senate, 22nd Senatorial District, Rock and Walworth Counties

Why Vote for Gettle Next Tuesday?

Because he has a clean record of public service.

Because he has demonstrated on the county board and in the Assembly his capacity and disposition to fight effectively for the interest of his constituents and the general good.

Because he rests his cause with the masses of the people and is opposed by the newspapers.

Because he never broke a promise made to his constituents.

Because the interests of the business men, the taxpayers, the farmers and working men of this country have always been his first concern.

WHO SHOULD VOTE FOR HIM:

If political support should be awarded for work done, then

THE WORKINGMEN should vote for him because of his support of the workman's compensation act whereby the workingman can secure just compensation for injuries without delay and without expense. Under the old law 83 per cent of all recoveries for personal injury were consumed in expense and only 17 per cent ever reached the working man and then only after weary uncertainty and delay.

THE FARMER, because of Gettle's votes and work on the tuberculin test bill, bills seeming an equitable division of state aid to poultry associations to manufacture tuberculin fluid and hog cholera serum in our own state laboratories, to promote the work of the State Stock Breeders' Association, the twine bill and other similar measures.

THE BANKERS AND BORROWERS FROM BANKS should support him for his work defeating the bill for segregation of savings deposits at their special request.

THE BAKERS' vote should go to him for his defeat of the Sunday baking bill after it had passed the assembly by a vote of 60 to 27.

THE CITY OFFICIALS of Janesville might consider his candidacy favorable for taking care of their bridge bill.

THE ROCK COUNTY BOARD should support him because for 12 years he has notably assisted in the economical and businesslike administration of County affairs and because he carried out their instructions and requests in reference to the abstract and state highway bills.

THE RAILWAY CONDUCTORS OF JANESVILLE will vote for Gettle because he effectively aided them in just legislation affecting their interests.

THE TEACHERS should support him for his aid on the Teacher's Retirement Fund bill at the written request of more than 200 Janesville business men.

EVERY TAXPAYER should support him who appreciates his work in defeating a paid state highway commission in fighting against every measure that sought to divert tax money from Rock County to other parts of the state, like the terminal taxation bill, in voting against special junketing committees, in introducing and seeing through a bill to create an unpaid Board of Public Affairs, an efficiency board to correct waste and duplication in state expenditures along the lines urged by Louis Brandeis.

BECAUSE GETTLE WAS "ON THE JOB" ALL THE TIME FOR ROCK COUNTY AND ITS GREAT COUNTY SEAT, THE CITY OF JANESVILLE

GETTLE'S NAME CONJURED WITH

RUMOR HATH IT THAT HE'LL

EDGERTON LEGISLATOR TALKED FOR SENATOR IN THE
TWENTY-SECOND

Politicians hereabout, particularly progressives, are entertaining a rumor that seems to be quite vigorous to the point that Assemblyman L. E. Gettle of Edgerton will be a candidate to succeed Senator John M. Whitehead of Janesville in the upper house of the next legislature.

Mr. Gettle is an attorney of more than ordinary reputation at Edgerton, just across the Dane county line in Rock county. The twenty-second senatorial district formerly was Rock county alone, but by the apportionment of the last legislature, Walworth county, just to the east, was added. He came to the legislature of 1911 as a new member and at once became one of the moving forces. His alignment was with the progressives and in debate he kept the wires hot whenever the topic was to his fancy. On the good roads bill he was against the proposal which finally prevailed and he fought vigorously for his view of that question. He proved a good loser, however, and when the strife was over he put his tomahawk away. Should he conclude to enter actively into the contest he will be heard to good effect for he has ideas and a voice stentorian to give them publicity on the hustings.

Senator Whitehead, it is said, will not seek the place again. He was first elected to the senate in 1896 and has served continuously since, 16 years of good service to his district and the state. Factionally, Senator Whitehead was a stalwart. — Madison Democrat, February 3, 1912.

For State Senator.

On another page will be seen the announcement of Hon. L. E. Gettle as candidate for State Senator of this district. Mr. Gettle is one of the most aggressive members Rock County has ever had at Madison. What he has accomplished is a matter of record and is referred to in his announcement published in the Banner this week. His qualifications for the office are all that can be asked and his principles are unquestioned.—Clinton Banner, Aug. 12, 1912

At Madison he took a prominent part in the workings of the Assembly even from the very beginning. His ability as a strong fearless debater and his open direct methods won him a favorable place among the ablest members.

In fact an indefatigable worker, he was on the job at all times and conferred distinction on the district which sent him to the legislature.—Edgerton Eagle July 25, 1912.

The state law regarding the initiative and referendum is largely the result of his work and is said by men of national reputation to be the best yet enacted by any state. Mr. Gettle carefully guarded the interests of his district and saved thousands of dollars to the taxpayers of this part of the state. He would make a strong Senator from this district. — Evansville Review August 9, 1912.

"CAN THE LEOPARD CHANGE ITS SPOTS?"

Edgerton Eagle, August 29, 1912.

The Wisconsin Tobacco Reporter, with its "brazen effrontery", and the Janesville Gazette, with its evasive tory standing, both are for the recall of the income tax law. The former has not had the hardihood to attack the law of itself, but has used its scissors lavishly on other tory sheets. The Gazette has not been square enough with its readers to give them the truth about that law and state honestly the true workings thereof.

These papers have aided Judge Karel's candidacy because he is out for the repeal of the income tax law. Thus the position of these papers is shown. For the senate for this district both papers are supporting a candidate and claim for him that "he comes out flatly against" the income tax and "all voters know where he stands relative to this and other measures."

That is indeed an elastic statement. How these two papers have willfully forgotten that this candidate in the race for the assembly, two years ago, tried the Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde act with the voters! How he felt the ground slipping from under his strictly tory platform, and to save himself attempted to win support by bringing forth another platform, placing his name on a card purporting to support the progressive cause and Senator LaFollette. His duplicity brought its just reward in defeat.

Yes, that was two years ago! But the source of his urging support and the master hands are the same now as then. Under these conditions "can the leopard change its spots?"

Up until July this year this candidate was a Roosevelt supporter, but on July 22d, at a convention called in behalf of his candidacy accepted the nomination for candidate for the senate. Not from a band of Roosevelt supporters, nor from the progressives. But bowed his knee to the dictation of a gathering of some sixty rock-ribbed Tories, leaders and standbys in the old stalwart element of Wisconsin.

The people did not know where he stood two years ago, neither do they know where he stands today. He was brought out this year, not because Mr. Gettle (who was first in the field) has failed to protect the interests of his constituents, but for the reason that being a 'capitalist' and having business relations with heavy moneyed interests, he would be a safer legislator for them than one who was fighting on the firing line for government by the people in the interest of the majority.

In the candidacy of Lewis E. Gettle we have a straightforward worker in the interest of the people as a whole. One not pretending to stand for or against a measure, but one who in every public service has not stood idle on the side lines. He is in the fight to the last for what he believes to be right and best for his constituents. While his enemies have raised the cry that he has held office for a number of years, they cannot bring forth and sustain one charge where in all his public service he has not been fighting for honesty and efficiency in everything and actively opposed to graft. He has never sought to mislead the people as to where he stands on any question.

Mr. Gettle stands for the income tax, corrected if shown necessary after the year's returns are completed. The income tax so far as reports have been given shows that it is relieving the farmer and laboring man of part of his burden and it is bringing to account the tax dodger and moneyed man who is financially able to meet the tax. He worked in the assembly, and stands today, for economy in state administration.

We have no quarrel personally with any candidate but believe it our duty to give the facts leaving to the voter his right to choose the candidate he would have represent him in any office.

ROCK RIVER SURVEY PARTY AT ROCKFORD

Federal Government Force Which Started Work at Janesville Making Satisfactory Progress.

The war department engineers and their assistants who began a survey of the Rock river at Janesville early in the summer with the purpose of ascertaining whether the stream can be made navigable from this city to Sterling, have reached Rockford and are in camp near the Snow pickle factory. Some time next week they will move their camp to the mouth of the Kishwaukee.

The survey from Janesville to Sterling is about half completed. The engineers have been taking observations and collecting data to find out if a seven foot channel from thirty-five to forty feet in width can be constructed and maintained. According to the Rockford Republic: "The work of surveying has been uneventful. The only occurrence out of the ordinary was when fishes jumped into the boat of the surveying party. On three different occasions a big black bass jumped into the boat. They promptly took the fish home for supper, showing the doubters the fish and pointing out that they had neither line nor hook."

Favors the income tax as a substitute for the tax on moneys and credits because it is less objectionable than the moneys and credits tax.

The complete tabulated returns of the income tax from Dane County made by the Tax Commission show that the income Tax will reduce the real estate tax from one to two dollars on a thousand dollars valuation. In other words it would reduce the taxes on real estate in Janesville from $18.93 the present rate, to $18.00 or $17.00 on a thousand dollar valuation; that the tax will fall principally on those with large incomes; that only about two per cent of the tax is paid by working men and farmers combined; that one-half of the tax assessed against those in mercantile pursuits will be paid by the merchants handing in their receipts for personal property tax which they have always had to pay; that the same is probably true of the manufacturers; that of all persons taxed the Professional man is hit hardest, more of the tax being obtained from him than any other class of persons.

FOR ASSEMBLYMAN

LUCIUS E. KENNEDY

The progressive movement like the Grand Old Republican Party, was born in Wisconsin and within the ranks of that party. I deem that party the best fitted to secure for, and return to the people, their government.

I believe that Republicanism means progress.

I believe that any person holding the office of Assemblyman should at all times work for and in the interests of his constituents.

I believe in an economic and business administration.

I believe that every man should pay his just share of the taxes.

I believe in the enforcement of the law, as does every good citizen.

I believe in the preservation of the rights of womanhood and the protection of childhood.

I come from the ranks of labor and believe in the protection of the rights of the workingman.

Agriculture is Wisconsin's chief source of wealth and I favor such legislation as will properly safeguard the interests of the farmer.

I am engaged in business and have a high respect for men who have achieved success.

I favor such legislation as will bring industries into the state and help them prosper.

I favor such amendments to the Income Tax Law, as will make it a law that will be fair to all. The amendment to the State Constitution authorizing the Income Tax Law was adopted by a majority vote, at two sessions of the Legislature and ratified by the people, by a vote of four to one and should the people desire to again voice their opinion of the law, I favor a resubmission of this law to a vote.

The right to vote is a franchise extended to every qualified male citizen by our constitution. Upon this franchise is based the fundamental principles of representative government. The man who fails to exercise this right shows a lack of interest in the welfare of his country; and for him republican government does not secure the ends for which it was intended. I trust that you, Mr. Voter, will use this right, and I assure you I will appreciate your support.

Tuesday is Primary Day

Loving a square deal I have made no pledges to any interest or faction. Favoring progressive legislation I shall test every measure by its sanity. If the Income Tax law can be so amended that its vicious features can be eliminated favor such amended law provided always that such law does not leave our industries a prey to the avarice of foreign commercial bodies. It is common prudence to lock the barn door before the horse is stolen.

In order to do exact justice to both the university and the State at large I shall want to know all about that institution.

Our constantly increasing commissions are becoming a great burden to the state and call for a constantly increasing taxation which I do not favor.

To do the "right as God gives me to use the right," is a matter I shall not change if elected.

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN

Ideal Housekeeping as Practised by a Man.

THAT the work of housekeeping can be very materially reduced has been proven by a man.

That it took a man to ferret out and throw aside the useless things we do in keeping house may hurt the pride of some of us. We would rather these reforms had come through a woman. But in the main we are so glad they have come that not many of us will stop to quibble over the medium.

And perhaps it is just as well man did go to the task, for woman is so hampered by traditions and conventions and habits, that it would have taken many years more for her to rise up and throw off certain housekeeping shackles, which this man, feeling them for the first time and seeing their utter uselessness, immediately cast aside without a moment of delay for a single instant of indecision.

For this man was a scientific individual, a professor, and unexpectedly the care of the house fell upon his shoulders. He had no preconceived notions about housekeeping, no traditions, no habits. In addition he had quite a lot of scientific work to do. And in this open condition of mind he took up his new duties.

He was soon appalled at the waste of time and waste of energy; for needing these for other work, they were more precious to him perhaps than waste of other things. He saw that this waste must be stopped.

He reconstructed the kitchen so that his utensils or tools were within reaching distance. He put an end at once to the miles of walking that is done by many a housewife, unnecessarily, and which brings her to the end of the day worn out.

Then he grouped together things that were used together. He not only saved unnecessary steps, but he even eliminated unnecessary reaching. And this is likewise a time saver. For if the bread is here and the butter there and the bread and butter plates and knives somewhere else, it takes more time and energy to collect them, than if they are all together in one place.

He carried this group idea as practically as possible into everything with which he worked.

Another step-saver was a stand on wheels similar to the muffin stand for afternoon tea. This he had made by a local carpenter at small cost. On this went all the things for the table and one trip set the table, and one trip cleared it.

Not having facilities for electricity or gas, he procured other cooking arrangements that did away with a coal range and all its work.

Every part of the housekeeping routine he scrutinized with the one desire to accomplish the necessary result with as little expenditure of time and energy as possible.

As a result his home became the mecca of the housekeepers of his locality, finally of those of the state, and now it is an experiment station in domestic science.

If housekeepers would go about studying their own housekeeping problems in the same cold, impartial way, they could eliminate much of the work they are now doing. Some say they can't afford the utensils and the change necessary, but in the end they are money savers. A wasteful way of doing things is never the cheapest way. A woman's time and energy are money in another form. Many a woman if she would do her housework efficiently, and this word is meant here with its new, scientific definition, could get along without a maid or with only occasional help. And this saving is great. Many another would have time for other work about the house, or in the care of her children, quite as important and quite as financially profitable as the household tasks she performs. And the saving of her own strength, if nothing else is gained, is worth while.

So study your housekeeping problems as keenly and with as clear and unfettered a vision as did this man, and see if there are not many ways in which you can introduce labor-saving machinery and cut out unnecessary steps and work. It is high time housekeeping was run in the efficient, up-to-date way of any business enterprise.

DAINTIES FROM THE PAPER BAG.

Because the weather is hot do not let us neglect the delicacies from the paper bag. These may be prepared and put on to the oven rack when the lower oven is being used for other things.

Tripe Creole.—Wash out a pound of tripe and slice in half inch pieces. Chop one large onion, slice one green pepper, add six fresh mushrooms and two tomatoes, skinned, seeded and chopped. Add salt and pepper and mix with the tripe. Add a half cup of gravy or broth and put into a buttered bag. Bake forty-five minutes.

Sausage, onions and tomatoes, cooked twenty minutes in a bag is a nice luncheon dish.

Calf's Brains With Brown Butter.—Clean and wash the brains, add salt, pepper, a tablespoonful of capers and a few sprigs of parsley. Brown two tablespoonfuls of butter in a pan and pour over the mixture. Put into a bag and bake twenty minutes.

Beef Loaf.—Cut six slices of raw beef, steak very thin, flatten and season with salt and pepper. Make a stuffing of a small onion, three slices of bacon, a little parsley and two tablespoonfuls of ham and beef drippings all chopped together. Season with sage or thyme, add a few bread crumbs and roll up and skewer with toothpicks. Place in a buttered bag, add two tablespoonfuls of butter and a teaspoonful of caramel. Bake thirty minutes.

Cooking in paper bags which are made for that purpose appeals to most women, as the food retains the flavor and zest which no other method of cooking even approaches.

The food once placed in a bag large enough and with the heat right, no more looking into the oven is necessary until the time is up. It is necessary to get used to the oven in order to time the cooking.

Soups are about the only food which cannot satisfactorily be cooked in a paper bag. Cabbage is a vegetable that is not improved by paper bag cooking.

HEREDITY AND HEALTH.

It would be impossible for a man of ordinary intelligence not befuddled by theories to devote the average time to the study of physiology, comparative anatomy, hygiene and the various sciences that underlie the practice of the healing art, and then to practice intelligently for half a dozen years without becoming fully satisfied that heredity is a highly important factor in determining health. If one knows his talents he knows what he may hope to accomplish; if he knows his defects he knows what to guard against; and it is vitally important that a man should know what his weak points are physically. If, for instance, his heart is weak, he can avoid serious strain that often results in materially shortening life; if his father died of Bright's disease and his dietetic and other habits have been about the same, the prospect of kidney disease for him is much greater than that of the average person, and he should take steps to provide against it. Everyone should have his family history and its indications. And the physician who does not recognize the importance of such indications, has more important knowledge to acquire by experience than any that he has learned from the books or could acquire by experience from the Royal Society of Physicians. Some practical illustrations of these principles will be given later.

Substitute for Wall Paper.

Among the peculiar substitutes for wall paper is that used in one of the New York art galleries. It is nothing but a huge rag carpet of neutral tone that covers the entire wall space. "I had it woven especially for this purpose," said the owner, "and my pictures never had a better setting, though I am bound to admit that the carpet attracts as much attention as the paintings."

BY RUTH CAMERON

EXACTINGNESS.
Popularity Papers—Being the Fifth of a Few Little Talks on the Ingredients of Popularity.

IT IS not only what you put into a cake or pudding which makes it good, but what you leave out. It is not only because you put plenty of eggs into the pudding and cook it just long enough that it is delectable, but because you do not put in too much salt or any other flavoring.

And it is even so with the "huge porringer of popularity." Among my friends is a young woman who is extremely pretty and very clever, a generous girl, lavish with the money she earns, a cultured, well developed woman, interested in other people and in the big world. By all appearances this girl ought to be extremely popular. And yet she is not.

On the contrary, her friends are few and far between. Why is it? Well, it is not because there is anything lacking in the "porringer of popularity," but because there is too much of a certain thing in it, for this girl is one of those people who are so thoroughly exacting that other folks are afraid of them. She wants everyone to measure up to an impossible standard of culture, clothing and character; and she condemns those who fail, with no uncertain condemnation.

Naturally, many of us common folks are self-conscious and uncomfortable in her august presence and consequently we do not seek her company.

This girl is a type of the people who drive their friends away by asking too much of them. There is such a thing as asking too little of our friends; of failing to encourage them to be their best selves. Stevenson's ideal "to keep my friends without capitulation" paints a friendship in which each shall encourage the other to reach his greatest height. But such encouragement and stimulus is a very different thing from setting one's self up as a judge to condemn others for failing to measure up to an impossible standard of excellence.

Then there is another kind of exacting which is equally deadly to popularity, and that is the superiority of people who are always complaining because their friends do not treat them right. "You have called at Mrs. So and So's twice since you've been to see me." "You scarcely spoke to me the other night. I suppose you were too busy with your new friend." Such are the accusations with which these people make their would-be friends miserable, and as no one likes to be made miserable "would-be" is very apt to be changed to "wouldn't be."

It is said that Atticus, the Greek philosopher, was once asked how he kept his friends so well, and that he answered: "Because I never expect anything of them." That is a rather cynical statement, but it is certainly true that the person who expects too much of those about him will receive nothing.

According to Mrs. Russell-Moore's maid (who ought to know), "she can make that bag talk. She can bounce it off her head, her elbows, and even her knees when she lengthens the rope so she can jump that far."

Yet there are women much younger than Lillian Russell, is today who grunt and groan when they walk upstairs, and who couldn't bend their knees when stooping to pick anything from the floor, to say nothing of the average middle-aged woman, sinking up bag punching at an advanced age and being able to jump in order to bounce it off her knees.

Lillian Russell's years are somewhat over fifty; in fact, quite a bit over fifty. But she has not allowed herself to get stiff or stale. She has kept mind and body agile, ready to take up anything new at any time. That's why she is still beautiful.

Other women have been cooing themselves in bed or in rocking chairs, or have lived in a continuous rush. They have been careless of their stomachs and their physical well-being. They have depended upon nostrums to keep the complexion clear and antitoxins to keep down aciditoxins. They have had the idea that they may indulge themselves in food or excitement or in pure laziness without bad results, putting faith in anything but common sense, fresh air and exercise as the only preservatives of health and comeliness.

It's pure laziness and self-indulgence that makes one old and ugly in middle age—a time when every man should be in his prime, physically.

ly or mentally. It is possible for every woman to be in trim to kick a punching bag when she's fifty, and to keep her mind from petrifying when she reaches middle age.

Speaking about petrified minds. Have you ever come across any of those uncomfortable people who pride themselves on being "set"? They are never open to reason. They have a set of opinions locked up in a little drawer in their mentality, and no matter how yellow and dusty with age they become, nor how obsolete, their possessor wouldn't change them for the world. They call this "consistency" or being "firm," though in fact they are not consistent, for consistency keeps pace with natural changes, and what was consistent yesterday may not be at all consistent with the conditions of today.

As for "firmness"—possibly a mule is firm, but we don't call it that when he has an opinion and sticks to it in spite of force or persuasion.

Women are supposed to be experts in the matter of mind-changing. Perhaps they are, in little things. But in important matters women are as "set" as men. It's too much trouble to change—to study new movements and opinions that would create a consistency with the new conditions.

It's much easier to hold onto the old ideas. Once formed, they require no effort of thought. The mind is allowed to become legathic until it "sets" or petrifies so solidly that nothing but dynamite will disturb it.

In their housekeeping women have shown their disinclination to think out new ways, to utilize new processes, even to make work easier and accomplish all-round better results. Houses are still run on the old rule-of-thumb plan handed down by grandmothers, simply because the housewife has been started that way and hasn't kept her mind agile enough to think up anything better or different.

A mind which isn't properly exercised soon becomes just as useless and poor a specimen as the body which isn't properly cared for.

HOUSEHOLD TALKS

Henrietta D. Grand

The origin of bread as generally understood is quite modern when compared with that of crackers and thin biscuits, which are the oldest forms in which crushed grains were baked. The Family Grocer says: "A good example of the cracker as used in historic times is seen in the shape of matzo's. The form and method of baking this cracker has not undergone any material change since the earliest times in the history of the Hebrew race."

Every country uses crackers in some form: South America has the tortilla, a flat cracker made of coarse cornmeal and baked on sheets of stone or iron. These crackers are used for spoons and forks, even soup is eaten in this way by the natives and travelers in search of local color.

The cassava plant furnishes tapioca and a coarse meal that is made into sheets of thin paste and baked as the tortilla. "This cracker," continues the Grocer, "is made in the shape of a very large shallow bowl which will balance on the head, where it is carried, and, in South America at least, the saying, 'I'll eat my hat,' becomes a literal fact."

It is said that our words tartlets, meaning light sweet pastry, come from tort and tortilla.

One Philadelphia house advertises over three hundred varieties of crackers, some of which almost approach the line of confections, they are so rich and tasty. It is out of the question for the home baker to successfully imitate these fancy wares, but formerly fine crackers and wafers were made at home and they may be still, at less price and with better flavor than the commercial ones.

It will be remembered that Bishop Colenso also had a high opinion of the acumen of certain native Africans as biblical critics.

Sweet Crackers—Mix half a cup of butter into two and a half cups of flour that has been previously sifted with one and a half teaspoons of baking powder, a level teaspoon of salt and a tablespoon of sugar. When the mixture is worked smoothly into the butter is worked smoothly into the mixture add just enough cold water to make a dough that will roll out thinner than a pie-crust.

Cut in rounds somewhat larger than the crackers in the stores. The sugar may be omitted or a larger quantity may be added with rose water, vanilla or lemon flavoring. These crackers will keep fresh and crisp as long as they last and are more wholesome for little folks than cookies.

Albernathy Biscuit—Rub two tablespoonfuls of butter into two cups of flour, add a tablespoon of sugar and a tablespoon of caraway seeds. Beat two eggs light, and add to the above; if too stiff to mix and roll, add a very little milk. Cut into round, thin cakes; prick each one with a fork and bake in a moderate oven until crisp and delicately browned. These are fine tea cakes.

Whole Wheat Wafers—Into half a cup of rich, sweet cream stir enough whole wheat flour to make a stiff dough, add a level teaspoon of salt. Knead and roll out very thin. Bake on an ungreased tin.

Graham Wafers—Sift one pint of white flour with a teaspoon of salt and a third of a cup of sugar into a pint of unsifted graham flour. Work in a third of a cup of butter or butter and drippings. Mix with enough cold water to make a rather stiff dough. Roll thin and cut in squares. Bake quickly.

Crackers—Add four tablespoonfuls of melted butter to a cup of cold cooked oatmeal, a half cup of cold milk, and four tablespoonfuls of sugar. Mix with enough sifted flour to make stiff dough. Roll thin and bake in a moderate oven.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Aug. 30, 1872.—From the town of Lima we have the reports of a heavy frost in the marsh lands last night, which left its mark on vegetation. In other portions of the county there was a light frost on the lowlands, but its presence was not visible in more elevated localities. Tobacco is generally grown upon high ground and fortunately escaped the visitation.

The Way to Meet Work.

The beauty of work depends upon the way we meet it—whether we arm ourselves each morning to attack it as an enemy that must be vanquished before night comes, or whether we open our eyes with the sunrise to welcome it as an approaching friend who will keep us delightful company all day, and who will make us feel at evening that the day was well worth its fatigues.—Lucy Larcom.

He raised his eyes, and his wife encountered an unexpected look of anger in them. She shrank a little, being totally unprepared for it.

"How should I know whether her hair was bleached or not?" he said sharply. "That's a very silly question."

Berny was taken aback.

"I don't see that it is," she said with unusual and somewhat stammering mildness. "Most blonde-haired women, even if they haven't bleached their hair, have had it 'restored'."

Dominick did not answer her. The servant presented a dish at his elbow and he motioned it away with an impatient gesture.

Berny, who was not looking at him, went on.

"What kind of clothes did she wear? They say she's an elegant dresser, gets almost everything from Paris, even her underwear. I suppose she didn't have her best things up there. But she must have had something, because the papers said they'd gone prepared for a two weeks' trip."

"I never noticed anything she wore."

"Well, isn't that just like you, Dominick Ryan?" exclaimed his wife, unable at this unmerited disappointment, to refrain from some expression of her feelings. "And you might know I'd be anxious to hear what she had on."

"I'm very sorry, but I haven't an idea about any of her clothes. I think they were always dark, mostly black or brown."

"Did you notice," almost pleadingly, "what she wore when she went out?" Mrs. Whiting, the forelady at Hazel's millinery, says she imported a set of sables, muff, wrap and hat, for her this autumn. Hazel says it was just the finest thing of its kind you ever laid your eyes on. Did she have them up there?"

"I couldn't possibly tell you. I don't know what sables are. I saw her once with a fur cap on, but I think it belonged to Willoughby, an Englishman who was staying there, and used to have his cap hanging on the pegs in the hall. It's quite useless asking me these questions. I don't know anything about the subject. Did you wind the clock while I was away?"

He looked at the clock, a possession of his own, given him in the days when his mother and sister delighted to ornament his rooms with costly gifts and in which he had never before evinced the slightest interest.

"Of course, I wound it," Berny said with an air of hurt protest. "Haven't I wound it regularly for nearly three years?"

This brought the subject of Rose Cannon to an end and she was not alluded to again during the dinner. The conversation reverted to such happenings in the city as Berny thought might interest her husband, and it seemed to her that he was more pleased to sit and listen to her chatter of her sisters, the bank, the theaters, and the shops, than to dilate any further on his adventures in the snow-bound Sierra.

When the dinner was over, they returned to the front of the flat, where next to the parlor there was a tiny hall-room fitted up as a smoking-room and den. It was merely a continuation of the hall, and "the cozy corner" which Berny had had a Polk street upholsterer construct in it, occupied most of the available space, and crowded such visitors as entered it into the corners. It had been Berny's idea to have this room "lined with books" as she expressed it, but their joint possessions in this line consisting of some twenty-five volumes, and the fact that the contracted space made it impossible to accommodate both the books and the cozy corner, Berny had decided in favor of the latter. She now seated herself on the divan that formed the integral part of this construction, and, pulling the pillows behind her, leaned luxuriously back under the canopy of varnished stuffs which was supported by two formidable-looking lances.

Dominick sat in his easy chair. He always smoked in this room and read the papers, and presently he picked them up from the table and began to look them over. The conversation languished, became spasmodic, and finally died away. Berny, leaning back on the cushions, tried several times to revive it, but her husband from among the spread sheets of the evening press answered her with the inarticulate sounds of mental preoccupation, and sometimes with no sound at all, till she abandoned the attempt and leaned back under the canopy in a silence that was not by any means the soporific quietude of after-dinner torpor.

The clock hands were pointing to half-past nine when a ring at the bell was followed by the appearance of the Chinaman at the door, stating that the expressman had come with Mr. Ryan's valises. Dominick threw down his papers and left the room. As Berny sat silent, she could hear the expressman's gruff deep voice in the hall and the thuds of the valises as he thumped them down at the stair-head. Dominick answered him and there were a few more remarks, followed by the retreating sound of the man's heavy feet on the stairs and the bang of the hall door. She sat looking at the clock, waiting for her husband to return, and then as he did not come and the hall seemed singularly quiet, she leaned forward and sent an exploring glance down its dim length. Dominick was not there, but a square of light fell out from an open doorway of his room.

"Dominick," she called, "what are you doing?"

He came to the door of the room in his shirt-sleeves, a tall figure looking lean and powerful in this close-fitting and lighter garb.

"I'm unpacking my things, and then I'm going to bed."

"Oh?" she answered with a falling inflection, leaning forward, with her elbows planted on her knees, craning her neck to see more plainly down the narrow passageway. "It's only half-past nine; why do you want to go to bed so early?"

"I'm tired, and it will take me some time to get these things put away."

"Can I help you?" she asked without moving.

"No, thanks. There's nothing much to bother about. Good night, Berny," and he stepped back into the room and shut the door.

Berny sat as he had left her for a space, and then drew back upon the divan and leaned against the mound of pillows. She made the movement slowly and slowly, her face set in a rigidity of thought to which her body seemed fixed and obedient. She sat thus for an hour without moving, her eyes staring before her, two straight lines folded in the skin between her brows.

So he was still angry, angry and unforgiving. That was the way she read his behavior. The coldness that he exhaled, that penetrated even her unsensitive outer shell—she took to be the coldness of unappeased indignation. He had never before been just like this. There was a something of acquired forbearance and patience about him—a cultivated thing, not a spontaneous outward indication of an inner condition of being—which was new to her observation. He was not sulky or cross; he was simply withdrawn from her and trying to hide it under a manner of careful, guarded civility. It was different from any state she had yet seen him in, but it never crossed her mind that it might be caused by the influence of another woman.

He was still angry—that was what Berny thought; and sitting on the divan under the canopy with its fiercely-poised lances she meditated on the subject. His winning back was far from accomplished. He was not as "easy" as she had always thought. A feeling of respect for him entered into her musings, a feeling that was novel, for in her regard for her husband there had previously been a careless, slighting tolerance which was not far removed from contempt. But if he had pride enough to keep her thus coldly at arm's length, to withstand her attempts at forgiveness and reconciliation, he was more of a man than she thought, and she had a harder task to handle than she had guessed. She did not melt into anything like self-pity at the futility of her efforts, which, had Dominick known of them, would have seemed to him extremely pathetic. That they had not succeeded gave her a new impetus of force and purpose, made her think, and scheme with a hard, cool resolution. To "make up" and gain ascendancy over Dominick, independent and proudly indifferent, was much more worth wrote than to bully Dominick, patient, enduring and ruled by a sense of duty.

CHAPTER XI.

The Gods in the Machine.

On the second Sunday after their return from Antelope, Bill Cannon resolved to dedicate the afternoon to paying calls. This, at least, was what he told his daughter at luncheon as he, she, and Gene sat over the end of the meal. To pay calls was not one of the Bonanza King's customs, and in answer to Rose's query as to whom he was going to honor thus, he responded that he thought he'd "start in with Della Ryan."

Rose made no comment on this intelligence. The sharp glance he cast at her discovered no suggestion of consciousness in the peach-like placidity of her face. It gratified him to see her thus unsuspecting, and in the mellowing warmth of his satisfaction he turned and addressed a polite query to Gene as to how he intended spending the afternoon. Gene and Rose, it appeared, were going to the park to hear the band. Gene loved a good band, and one that played in the park Sunday afternoons was especially good. The Sunday before, Gene had heard it play "Post and Peasant" and the Overture of William Tell, and it was great! That was one of the "worst" things about living on a ranch, Gene complained, you didn't have any music except at the men's house at night when one of the Mexicans played on an accordion.

The old man, with his elbow on the table, and a short, blunt-fingered hand stroking his beard, looked at his son with narrowed eyes full of yelled amusement. When he did not find Gene disagreeably aggravating as his only failure, he could, as it were, stand away from him and realize how humorous he was if he took him in a certain way.

"What's the Mexican play?" he growled without removing his hand.

"La Paloma," answered Gene, pleased to be questioned thus amicably by his autocratic sire, "generally La Paloma, but he can play The Heart Bowed Down and the Toreador song from Carmen. I want him to learn the Miserere from Trovatore. It's nice to sit on the porch after dinner and listen while you smoke."

"Sort of Court Minstrel," said his father, thumping down his napkin with his hand spread flat on it. "Don't Eugenio Cannon, with his minstrel playing to him in the gloaming; it's very picturesque. Did you ever think of having a Court Fool too, or perhaps you don't feel as if you needed one?"

He arose from his chair before Gene, who never quite understood the somewhat ferocious humor of his parent, had time to reply.

"Well, so long," said the old man; "be good children and don't get into mischief, and Rose, see that your brother doesn't get lost or so carried away by the poet and the peasant, that he forgets the dinner hour. Adios, glorie!"

A half-hour later he walked down the flight of marble steps that led in dignified sweep from the front door to the street. It was a wonderful day, and for a moment he paused, looking with observing eyes at the prospect of hill and bay which seemed to glitter in the extreme corners of the atmosphere. Like all Californians he had a strong, natural appreciation of scenic and climatic beauty. Preoccupied with thoughts and schemes which were anything but uplifting, he yet was sensitively responsive to the splendors of the view before him. To the unclouded, pure blue of the vault above, to the balmy softness of the air against his face. Some one had once asked him why he did not live in Paris as the ideal home of the man of great wealth and small scruples. His answer had been that he preferred San Francisco because there were more fine days in the year there than anywhere else he knew of.

Now he paused, sniffing the air with distended nostril and inhaling it in deep, grateful inspirations. His eye moved slowly over the noble prospect, noted the deep sapphire tint of the bay, the horizon, violet dark against a pale sky, and the gem-like blues and amethysts of the distant hills. He turned his glance in the other direction and looked down the gray expanse of the street, the wide, clear, state street, with its air of clean spaciousness, sun-bathed, silent, almost empty, in the calm quietude of the Sabbath afternoon. The bustling thoroughfares of greater cities, with their dark, sordid crowds, their unlovely, vulgar hurry, their distracting noise, were offensive to him. The wonder crossed his mind, as it had done before, how men who could escape from such surroundings chose to remain in them.

He walked forward slowly, a thick-set, powerful figure, his frock-coat buttoned tight about the barrel-like roundness of his torso, a soft, black felt hat pulled well down on his head. His feet were broad and blunt like his hands, and in their square-toed shoes he planted them firmly on the pavement with a tread of solid, deliberate authority. His forward progress had something in it of an invincible, resistless march. He was thinking deeply as he walked, arranging and planning, and there was nothing in his figure, or movements, or the expression of his face, which suggested the sauntering aimlessness of an afternoon stroll.

Theater Etiquette.

Students of Smart-Set manners should bear in mind that it is now voted hopelessly dowdy, on entering the opera house, to hold open the swing doors on behalf of anybody who may be behind one. After your own entry, the door should, if possible, be let fly into the face of the lady behind you with a good smart bang—Bystander.

Light Touch

THE extremely light action of the Monarch

Typewriter endears it to all operators who use it.

The typist who takes pride in her position finds great satisfaction in being able to turn out as much work, and as good work, per hour, toward the end of the working day as during the morning. Other conditions being the same, she can always do this on a Monarch. There is "No Three O'Clock Fatigue" for users of this machine. The mechanical reason for the Monarch light touch is found in the action of the Monarch type bar, an exclusive and patented feature which gives this remarkably light touch.

We would remind the business man that Monarch light touch means more work and better work, because less physical strength is expended by the operator. Therefore, cost per folio is reduced, making the Monarch a business economy.

Resident of Town of La Prairie

Candidate for County Clerk

TO THE VOTERS OF ROCK COUNTY:

I have always voted the straight Republican ticket so far as National politics was concerned, but have been non-partisan in regard to local politics. I stand for principle and the man rather than party.

I am governed by no political faction or clique. I am after the office because I want it, and if elected I will try to work for the best interests of the office and all connected with it. If you, after looking up my reputation and character, can conscientiously support me at the primaries, I shall appreciate the same very much, but if you are at all in doubt as to my ability or fitness for the office, I shall thank you to vote for the candidate you think best fitted for the same, thereby doing your duty to yourself and the county.

The splendid vote given me 2 years ago for Register of Deeds, especially in that part of the county where I am best known, is a testimonial as to my qualifications.

ROCK COUNTY WOMAN IS READY TO HUNT

Laura Van Etta of Town of Milton is First Woman to Secure Hunting License This Year.

To Laura Van Etta, wife of James Van Etta of the town of Milton, belongs the distinction of being the first woman to whom a hunting license has been issued this season. She secured her license yesterday afternoon and is now ready for the fall and winter game season. Her husband also secured a license and they are planning on a number of expeditions together. Although this is the first season for Mrs. Van Etta to enjoy the sport to any extent, she is hoping to bag some big game and intends to try her hand at shooting deer before the season closes. Mrs. Van Etta gave her age as 18 years. She is five feet three inches tall and weighs 105 pounds.

Rock county can usually boast of three or four woman hunters each season. There are several who never miss getting a license as they are ardent followers of this out of door sport. It is the men, however, who flock to the county clerk's office for licenses and the average number issued each day since Aug. 16 has been over 15. Over 200 licenses have been issued in all and the first rush is not over. The demand will continue until the middle of the winter.

Plain Statement to Voters of the 22d Senatorial District

LAURENCE C. WHITTET.

In this statement to the voters of the 22nd Senatorial District, I wish to make my position clear upon the important questions confronting you at this election.

I am opposed to the present Income Tax law because it does not reach the party intended, the man who has been escaping taxation, but throws an additional burden upon the small householder who is at present paying the largest percentage of tax.

Let me illustrate; under the features of the Income Tax Law, there is something like six hundred thousand dollars worth of personal property in Rock County that is escaping taxation. It is the opinion that in Rock Co. there will not be sufficient revenue from the income tax to pay the cost of administration. What is the result? We must have a fixed sum to meet current expense. The tax which is lost from the personal property as well as any deficit in the administration of the income tax measure itself must be met by an increased tax upon real estate. This hits every tax payer and most directly and with greatest force the man who has his little home.

Under the provisions of the income tax law a married man with no family is allowed an exemption or an income of $1200.00 per year. Let us suppose that Mr. A living in a rented home, has $24,000 which he places out at 5% interest, bringing him a return of $1200.00, his exemption under the law. He has retired from active work and is living upon his income. Mr. B his neighbor, is a day laborer working we will say for $2.00 per day. He has an income earned by hard work of possibly $650.00. He has a little home valued at $2500.00, possibly he has a $1500.00 mortgage upon it. Does Mr. B. escape taxation? No, he pays a tax upon not only every dollar he has but more.

The Income Tax measure discriminates against the citizens of our State and compels them to pay a tax which is not borne by a citizen of another State engaged in the same line of business. We can see all about us the direct result of this unjust law; many large business enterprises that had planned improvements have dropped their plans, others have abandoned the State entirely and still others are awaiting the verdict of the voters at the coming election.

One of the large railroads taking advantages of the present situation is offering to manufacturers desirable locations in other states providing the manufacturing plant is located upon their line of road. Cities in other states are offering large bonuses to our manufacturing industries. It is a critical time in the industrial life of our State. If a manufacturing plant moves from a city the value of all real estate naturally depreciates and the workman in the plant who has been endeavoring to earn a little home for his declining years finds himself in the position of following the factory if he would have work, sacrificing his little home for what he can get and years of labor are gone. This eventually means an increased burden upon all real estate. Does not the situation appeal to you, Mr. Taxpayer?

I believe that we should attempt to reduce the cost of running our State Government rather than attempt to devise new ways of taxing our people. As outlined in my platform, I shall stand for an economical administration of State affairs.

Separation of the University from politics.

Opposed to the Income Tax law.

Amendment to Tuberculin Test law to meet wishes of farmers in my District, particularly that feature which provides no compensation for animals condemned after June 1st, 1913. It shall be my endeavor to stand for every measure which brings the greatest good to the greatest number. If my position appeals to you, I shall appreciate your support at the primaries on Sept. 3rd.
